George's story – part 2

While George was working in the workshop in the big city he was always surrounded by many friends with whom they often went to have a drink in their favourite bar and dinner, to watch a movie together or to go for a walk in the city park.

One of the days that George will never forget is when he went together with his best friends Alexander and Martin for a two-day excursion to the seaside. There they occasionally met George's formal colleague Maria who was also on a vacation with her husband Manuel. All five of them had a great time together, especially when they took a boat to visit the nearest island. During the sailing, Peter – the captain of the boat has told them the story of the island, what to visit and recommended them a very nice restaurant with a delicious lunch menu. They followed Peter's advice and after their long walking tour, they went for a nice lunch in the restaurant with a nice sea view. As they faced some difficulties with reading the big menu with small font size they started wondering what to do. Happily, Alexander saw the name-tag of their waitress Diana and call her to help them with choosing the food.
